In today’s increasingly competitive workforce, leadership and soft skills such as communications, collaboration, and networking, are key to getting ahead. Baruch College’s Starr Career Development Center has two targeted programs that help students hone their professional skills and style early on.

The Rising Starr Sophomore Program (RSSP)
This program has two main purposes: to help sophomores get a head start in career development, and to meet the growing workforce demand for early leaders. RSSP sophomores spend the academic year engaging in soft-skill development activities including:

- Presentations
- Team projects
- Written assignments
- Networking events
- Career programming

Passport to Partnership (P2P)
This program is for sophomores and juniors who are interested in accounting. P2P students participate in most RSSP activities and have access to special accounting-related events.

What are the Benefits of RSSP and P2P?

- Expand your network and increase your support system
- Improve your confidence and self-awareness
- Take greater responsibility for your own career planning
- Showcase marketable skills
- Gain better understanding of the job-seeking process
- Increase chances for successful employment

Who is Eligible and How do you Apply?
Students from all majors are eligible to apply. First-year students can apply for RSSP. First-year and sophomore students can apply for P2P. Applicants must be enrolled full time at Baruch and must have a minimum GPA of 3.0.

Interested students must submit a statement of purpose, résumé, and college transcript (unofficial).
